Basic Home Loan:

The Basic Home Loan is one of the most popular loans. It has the lowest running costs and less extras - so you pay a lower interest rate.

Standard Variable:

This is the most common home loan. It is usually at the lender's standard variable rate, and usually offers numerous features.

Professional Package:

A Professional Package offers you interest rate discounts depending on the loan size. It offers fee free transaction accounts and credit cards free of charge and a range of other special offers. It is a misnomer that the Professional Package is just for professionals! This is not the case. In fact, the only requirement you need to access these loans is to meet the lender's minimum loan amount (which can start at $100,000).

Line of Credit:

With this type of loan, you can access funds up to your approved limit at any time. Your salary can be paid directly into the loan account and you can access the balance of the loan at any time - like a credit card. You can use these funds to purchase shares, go on holiday, buy a new car, start home renovations and much more!

Home to Home Finance:

This can simplify the transition between properties. If your home is for sale and you wish to build, the lender advances the money so you can begin building your new home. Depending on the equity in your current home, you may be able to include all the fees too. The interest charged to your loan can be paid by you or capitalised (added to the loan amount). When your original property is sold, the proceeds are deposited to the new loan. The amount owing becomes your end loan and normal repayments commence.

Fixed:

A Fixed term home loan has a pre-determined, set in mortar interest rate for a set, agreed upon period of time. Fixed interest home loans provide you with the security of knowing exactly what your repayments will be for the duration of your mortgage agreement.

What is Mortgage Insurance?

Lenders Mortgage Insurance is insurance your lender will seek if you have less than 20% deposit. This is a one off fee that you will need to pay, and can sometimes be added to your loan.

When do I start making repayments during construction?

You will only make repayments on funds which have been drawn down by your lender. Initially this may be funds that were used to purchase your block of land. As your builder begins building your new home, your draw downs will increase in line with the ongoing stages of the construction. During this period your repayments are interest only.

How is my borrowing capacity calculated?

- Credit cards
- Personal loans
- Car loans and other mortgages
- Your family unit – ie, number of adults and number of children

When is the First Home Owner's Grant paid?

The FHOG is processed and paid by your lender. They will pay the $21,000 on the first draw down of your new home.
